

HDR Researcher Profile

Name: Teresa Carapeto

School of Education

Program: PhD

Thesis title: Steiner Waldorf Teacher Educators' Nature Conceptions and their enactment through Curriculum and Pedagogy

Thesis Description: The research aim of this research study is to understand and map Steiner Waldorf teacher educators' nature conceptions, and how such conceptions are enacted through curriculum and pedagogy. An arts-based research methodology is to be adopted in this study, as well as the qualitative research methods of interviews, focus group discussion and visual journaling.

Bio (short): Teresa Carapeto is a PhD student at Southern Cross University, School of Education, Australia. She has a particular interest in Steiner Waldorf Education, Environmental Education and arts-based research methodologies.

Member of Research Group/Centre/Cluster: Sustainability, Environment and the Arts in Education (SEAE) Research Cluster

Accolades:

Outstanding Graduate, Australian College of Educators World Teachers Day Award 2017

SCU Education Honours Scholarship Recipient 2017

SCU Independent Research Project Barcelona Scholarship Recipient 2015

Principal Supervisor: Professor Amy Cutter-Mackenzie-Kowles

Co-Supervisors: Professor Alexandra Lasczik and Dr Bronwen Haralambous

Link to researcher website: https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Teresa_Carapeto